Jacobus Lodewikus van Eyssen Joined the SAAF in 1936 as a cadet in the Transvaal Air Training Squadron while being an engineering student. Jack obtained his Engineering degree in 1940. He then became permanently involved with flying instruction at various air schools in South Africa. In mid-1944 he joined SAAF No. 31 heavy bomber squadron in the Mediterranean, flying B 24 Liberator aircraft. From Italy they flew mostly sorties to targets in Southern Europe. On the night of 14 August 1944 Jacks Liberator was shot down in Poland on a special supply drop mission to Warsaw. Jack bailed and made a safe decent by parachute. He was taken in by the Russians, interred for a while in Russia and then repatriated back to South Africa. Jack returned to the squadron in early 1945 and finished his operational tour when the war ended. Good condition Est. £6 - 8
